PROHIBITION IN KENTUCKY TOWNS

BOWLING GREEN.

Warren County Grand Jury's Report. On September 17th the grand jury of Warren County reported in part as follows:

"We find the moral conditions of the County as a whole very good. With few exceptions there is the kindest feeling of friendship existing between the citizens of the county. We also find the moral condition of the City to be gratifying. We find to evidence of any factional differences of any kind, in a word, the citizenship of the County as a whole seems to be at peace."

This seems to relate to Mr. Leigh's charge that strife, enmity and bitterness were the rule for Warren County.

BUSINESS MEN'S STATEMENT.
On the same day all the principal business men who could be reached, with three exceptions, signed the following statements:

"We, the undersigned, hereby subscribe our unqualified endorsement to the condition of affairs in our city, so far as we are able to observe, are decidedly improved morally and socially since the closing of the saloons here last May. That the latter has in no way affected the volume of business; and also that our city is not better in any way in any way."

T. OF CHIEF OF POLICE.
Following day, the 18th of the Chief of Police of Bowling Green gave out the following statement:

"During the four months under saloons to April, 1914, there were 147 arrests for all offenses, while in months without saloons, (May to April, 1915) there were 256 arrests,--one-fifth, in the former saloon here were 201 arrests for drunk while in the latter period without there were only 38 arrests for an offense--that is, less than one."

Moreover, his (Editor Leigh's) opinion that "Warren County voted as out of the City of Bowling Green" is unjust as the city majority is against the dram shop."

G. D. Sledge, Cashier of the Warren National Bank, Bowling Green, writes:

"Drinking and drunkenness is reduced about 80 per cent, and there is a very small amount of illicit selling; business has increased if any change."

RICHMOND.

Mr. Robert R. Burnham, Cashier of the Madison National Bank, Richmond, Kentucky, writes:

"My opinion is that drunkenness has been greatly reduced by the voting of local option, especially on our public days. Formerly the jail would be filled; we now have very few."

"I do not perceive that local option has hurt business in any way. The past few years have been very prosperous."

CYNTHIANA.

Mr. John M. Cromwell, Cashier of the National Bank of Cynthiana, writes:

"I can assure you that 'no license' has not harmfully affected business, as our City has never been so prosperous as at present. There are no idle business houses or dwellings to be found, while grocery stores, etc., are much more numerous."

"Real estate has been selling higher in the past three or four years than ever before in the history of our City--changes hands often and usually at a higher figure."

"Finally, I do not think that there is any reputable business in Cynthiana, not interested directly or indirectly in the sale of liquor, who would want the saloon back."

"Drunkenness has certainly decreased to a wonderful extent since our town went dry. Formerly, on Court days and other big days, it was no uncommon sight to see dozens of men drunk on the streets, both horse-back and a-foot."

HARRISBURG.
Mr. George W. Edwards, Cashier of the State Bank & Trust Company, of Harrisburg, writes:

"There is no question about the advantages of local option in Harrisburg. We have a far better and cleaner town under our present system of no saloons."

"Drinking and drunkenness have been reduced not less than 75 per cent. 'There is no great amount of illicit selling as compared with open saloons. 'Business is better in Harrisburg than ever in the past. Business and residence property has increased in value 25 to 35 per cent."

The Mayor of Harrisburg writes: "Our City tax rate for 1914 is $1.15."

THE OLD DOMINION DRY.

In closing we call attention to the fact that the grand old State of Virginia voted dry by more than 33,000 on Tuesday this week. Kentucky now has three "next-door" neighbors that are dry: Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

BROOKSVILLE.

Brooksville, Ky., Sept. 21, 1914.

Dear Sir: In answer to your inquiry in regard to Brooksville when Wet and Dry, I beg to reply that I was here when the saloons were voted out and I know the situation thoroughly. With the saloons here, our town was heavily in debt, with poor side-walks and hardly any street lights. Our local bank had only $80,000 on deposit. Since the removal of the saloon (WITHOUT THE REVENUE), we have bought and paid for a new Light Plant, are out of debt, have as much concrete side-walks as any town in Kentucky of our size; we have built two additions to the town, with many handsome homes, a new church, a large tobacco Warehouse, several business houses and are now building a $65,000 courthouse. Where the distillery was, we now have a prosperous lumber yard and mill. Property has doubled in value; our two banks have about $500,000 on deposit and TAXES ARE LOWER.

Yours sincerely,
J. A. DAVIS.

BE A GOOD NEIGHBOR

Mr. Mason County Voter, are you willing that your County Seat should longer defeat the purpose of the Local Option Law in our own country precincts? Do you not deplore the fact that Maysville, being with one exception the only "wet" town on either side of the Ohio River from Ashland to Covington, defeats the Local Option Law in the surrounding counties on both sides of the River? Will you not decline to be a party to this defeat of the righteous will of the people of these counties? DO YOU WISH THAT YOUR COUNTY SEAT SHOULD LONGER BE THE PLAGUE SPOT IN THIS SECTION OF THE OHIO VALLEY?

The people in our country towns and in Brooksville, Augusta, Mt. Olivet, Vanceburg, Flemingburg and all surrounding towns dread to see the trains and automobiles that convey Maysville liquors. Do we not owe it to them and to ourselves to give them relief?

Peebles is to have electric lights and a new town hall.

MR. MEEKER'S DIGNIFIED CHALLENGE

Is it worth while to discredit the intelligence of the people by replying to an opponent who is so driven into a corner that he can only shriek "Lie, Lie, Lie," or wise to divert their minds from the real issue by indulging in personal retorts?

In an interview printed in Friday's papers, Mr. Meeker takes exception to a sub-heading in the review of his speech published in the papers September 16th. In the manuscript the sub-heading was SHOCKING PERVERSION OF THE BIBLE; in the paper which Mr. Meeker saw the typesetter made it REVISION.

The matter under the subheading follows:

"Mr. Meeker was once a minister of the Gospel. He knows as do all public speakers the magic there is in the name of Jesus. While he was a minister, he fell in company with some high-thinking, fragments of which he has not forgotten. And so he endeavored to catch the better part of his audience with reciting those fine lines of Holland, beginning, 'God Give Us Men,' and more of the same kind. Imagine his appealing to God to give us 'Men whom the lust of office will not buy' in addressing the advocates of the saloon in which the lust of office daily barter and sell men like sheep in the shambles. Has Mr. Meeker no sense of humor?"

But it was shocking beyond measure to hear the words of Jesus in a sermon quoted in support of the perpetration of what the people of Maysville daily see and hear on the east side of Market street from Third street to the river. Profanation, Impiety, Desecration, Blasphemy, are the terms that come readily to the mind in trying to describe Mr. Meeker in use of high and sacred things."

Mr. Meeker was not charged with "misquoting the Bible," but with perverting its application. And whether any application of Scripture is a perversion or not is a question of interpretation, not of veracity. To the writer of the review to quote the words of Jesus in Getsemane in support of LE GALIZING PUBLICLY EXPOSING FOR SALE A HABIT-FORMING, POISONOUS DRUG THAT DEPRIVES MEN OF THEIR REASON AND SELF-CONTROL is a shocking perversion.

The ignorant, the weak, the unwary, are exposed to a danger they do not understand and cannot estimate, as were doubtless the six young men who indulged in a drunken cutting scrape Monday night.

If the writer understands the mind of the Master, He would if in Mason County on Monday, September 28th, VOTE NO.

Mr. Meeker did not misquote the text, "Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man," but he did, in the writer's judgment, misapply it when he used it in defense of the alcoholic drink habit. With all her energy, while the man curses and profanes, Nature seeks by the skin, the lungs, the stomach, the kidneys and the intestines to expel the poison. Truly, the man is defiled as is the very air and every thing about him, first, by what the man has taken into himself.

Jesus was talking about the vermin of washing the outside of the platter before taking normal food, he was not talking about taking poison into the system. No one can with justice to his life and teaching so apply these words of Jesus.

Mr. Meeker says to prohibit the sale of a poison as a beverage destroys man's free moral agency. Whatever a man in full possession of his powers may be, a man, under the influence of alcohol with his perceptions dulled, his sense of proportion destroyed, his scale of values confused, his reason and self-control gone, has little power of choice. Alcohol strikes a crippling blow to man's free moral agency.

Mr. Meeker's sermons on the Good Samaritan and The Ninety and Nine were good so far as they went; but he did not make the application. Can it be shown that the advocates and supporters of the open saloon more often seek out the lost and bind up the wounded than do the church people who are back of the Anti-Saloon League?

Mr. Meeker eloquently described the shepherd of the ninety and nine who went in search of the lost sheep. But the shepherd brought that sheep, too, into the fold. Jesus had infinite compassion, but He came to save men FROM their sins. EVEN HE COULD NOT SAVE MEN IN THEIR SINS.

Nor would he have spread a net to catch the feet of the unwary. "It must needs be that offenses come; but woe unto that man by whom the offense cometh." Have a care, Mr. Voter. The responsibility is with you FIRST--not the distiller or the saloon keeper. They cannot exist without your consent.

Jesus commended the Good Samaritan; but he did not commend or condone or license the thieves. "There is one thing better than to be a Good Samaritan; and that is to capture the gang of thieves." This is what the Anti-Saloon League and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union are trying to do. Or as another puts it: "He who paves and polices the road to Jericho is a greater philanthropist than the Good Samaritan."

It was probably well-known by those who called Mr. Meeker's attention to it who reviewed Mr. Meeker's speech; but the writer asks no quarters on the score of being a woman. The armor of truth worn by a woman is as impervious to the shafts of error as when worn by a man. It is the writer's first experience; but it is not so bad to be called a "liar" when one knows and everybody else knows that one has not lied.

Mr. Meeker complained that the "Drys" had a monopoly on the vocabulary of denunciation and invective. He seems to have broken the monopoly. The "Drys" believe if they can break the monopoly which license creates, they can exterminate the liquor traffic.

QUESTION: SHALL MASON COUNTY MAKE IT LEGAL PUBLICLY TO EXPOSE FOR SALE A HABIT-FORMING, POISONOUS DRUG THAT DEPRIVES MEN OF THEIR REASON AND SELF-CONTROL, especially when large numbers--the majority of the people, NO NOT KNOW THE NATURE OF THE DRUG AND ITS EFFECT ON LIVING TISSUES?

TO VOTE DRY--VOTE NO.

DADDY AND HIS TWO LITTLE BOYS

(A TRUE STORY)

There was a big "wet" and "dry" battle being fought in one of the large towns in Indiana. Some of the business men of the city were "wet" and among them was a very prominent ex-State official, a big, liberal, good natured, jolly man and manager of a large factory. He was friendly to the saloons and gave money and much time to the campaign in their interests.

This man had a fine home, a lovely wife and two bright, innocent, chubby boys. The Daddy of these little fellows came home one evening after working for the saloons all day and while waiting for dinner he seated himself in a big easy chair with his "wet" evening paper. His two little boys came to him and crawled up under his paper and seated themselves in his lap one on each knee. As Daddy read the paper, the little boys busied themselves spelling out the words in the big head lines--"WET"; "DRY"; "SALOONS"; "PROHIBITION HURTS BUSINESS," and so forth. Finally one of the little fellows said: "Daddy, how are you going to vote, 'wet' or 'dry'?"

Daddy hesitated a moment, his face flushed and as he dropped his paper he replied: "Son, how do you think I ought to vote?" The little fellow said: "Well, we been a talken it over with Mamma and she says 'at she thinks you ought to vote 'dry' for us boys."

After dinner that night Daddy went down town to a "DRY" meeting and after relating his conversation with his little boy he said: "Gentlemen, I have ceased to be a friend and supporter of the saloons. I am your enemy no longer. I stand before you to-night the 'driest' man in this county and from now on, God helping me, I propose to work and vote until the Liquor Traffic is driven off the face of the earth, in the interest of my little boys and their mother and OTHER LITTLE BOYS AND THEIR MOTHERS. When Daddy finished talking, there were tears glistening in his eyes and big strong men sobbed and cried for joy.

"MARSE" HENRY AGAIN

In desperation the "wets" reprint an editorial from the Courier-Journal. Poor old "Marse Henry!" We have before read his eloquent raving against Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson, Prohibition, etc.

"No Democrat can be a prohibitionist" and yet the Democratic party elected our present President, despite the fact that the number of almost solidly Democratic States that have adopted Prohibition is yearly increasing, and the first member of the cabinet under the Democratic administration is an ardent prohibitionist.

Queer, isn't it?

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN TESTIFIES AGAINST THE SALOON

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

"What argument is made in favor of a return to the saloons? Is it that as much liquor is sold now as was sold when we had saloons? It would be a reflection upon your intelligence to suppose that any of you give weight to that argument."

"The liquor interests would not spend their money as freely as they do to prevent the closing of the saloons if more liquor was sold under the present system than would be sold through the saloons."

"The brewery is not a charitable institution. It is not operated for the benefit of the public. It does not want the saloon as an educational institution. It does not offer it as a moral center."

"It wants it as a means of selling liquor, AND UNTIL THE BREWERIES BECOME THE CHAMPIONS OF PROHIBITION WE NEED NOT PAY ANY ATTENTION TO THE ARGUMENT THAT MORE LIQUOR IS SOLD WITHOUT THE SALOON THAN WITH THEM."

Does Prohibition Hurt Business?

"A great deal is said now about the business of this city being injured by the closing of the saloons. It is strange that any one can be deceived by an argument so transparently false."

"IS IT POSSIBLE THAT BUSINESS IS IMPROVED BY THE EXPENDITURE OF MONEY FOR LIQUOR THAT OUGHT TO BE SPENT FOR FOOD AND CLOTHING?"

"CAN A CITY BE HELPED IN A BUSINESS WAY BY THE ENCOURAGEMENT OF A HABIT THAT WEAKENS THE STRENGTH OF ITS PEOPLE, LOWERS THEIR INTELLECTUAL ACTIVITY, AND UNDERMINES THEIR MORALS?"

"Those engaged in the liquor traffic, like all others who live by injuring society, must rely upon false arguments for the support of their cause."

"It is not true that a saloon helps a town. A few business men may think that the saloons will bring them business enough to justify them in being indifferent to the injury done to the town. If they thought the saloon a real benefit they would be in favor of giving the saloon a subsidy instead of putting a tax upon it."

"The saloon business is not like any other business. It is an outlaw--it lives by suffering. Its evil influence infects a community as the odors issuing from a slaughter house pollute the air of a neighborhood."

Health and Efficiency.

"If drinking is unnecessary, expensive, hurtful and dangerous, what is the wisest course to pursue?"

"If the soldier must give up alcohol because it interferes with his efficiency, why should not the civilian promote his efficiency by giving it up?"

"If it is demonstrated that alcohol is an evil, and only an evil; if it is proven it lessens the productive value of the citizen, who will say that the nation should look upon this great evil with indifference merely because a few people want to grow rich out of it?"

"Why should we condemn opium, morphine and cocaine if we are to worship at the shrine of whisky and beer?"

"In putting the ban upon alcoholic drinks in the navy, he (Secretary Daniels) is showing the same wisdom that characterized emperor William and the Czar in the efforts they are making in behalf of total abstinence."

The Saloon and the Government.

"Why is money invested in the liquor business so much more potent in politics than money invested in other forms of property?"

"Because money invested in breweries, distilleries and saloons is always used as a club to beat any one who opposes the demands of the liquor interests, while the owners of other forms of property allow themselves to be terrorized."

"The liquor business is on the defensive. Its representatives are for the most part lawless themselves and in league with lawlessness."

"THEY ARE IN PARTNERSHIP WITH THE GAMBLING HELL AND BROTHEL."

"THEY ARE THE MOST CORRUPT AND CORRUPTING INFLUENCE IN POLITICS, AND I SHALL NOT, BY VOICE OR VOTE AID THEM IN ESTABLISHING A REIGN OF TERROR IN THIS STATE."

In Conclusion.

"And now a word in conclusion. I have given as fairly as I could the arguments advanced in favor of the open saloon, and I have presented arguments that seemed to me to be conclusive against that policy, but I have considered the subject from the standpoint of the present."

"We must go further, we must look into the future. We must recognize
